Single-fund strategies for retirement investing with an asset allocation designed to last a lifetime

A focus on helping participants maintain their standard of living in retirement

The goal of our target date strategies is to help participants maintain their standard of living in retirement by balancing risk and return throughout their lifetime. Fidelity's glide path emphasizes diversification and reflects participants' needs to grow and protect their retirement savings.

A time-tested investment process

We believe target date investing requires a high degree of portfolio management insight, judgement, and skill. Our investment process is managed with accountability and supported by one of the industry's largest research teams. Our strategic asset allocation research emphasizes research into participant needs, portfolio diversification, and the long-term forces that affect capital markets. Within our index target date strategies we seek to deliver performance that closely tracks the composite benchmark.

A holistic commitment to value

Fidelity is committed to providing superior value to plan sponsors and participants through strong return potential, integrated participant communications and education programs, and competitive pricing. Expense ratios for Fidelity Freedom Index Funds are competitive.

What sets Fidelity apart

Fidelity has been helping investors save for retirement for over 70 years. We have one of the industry's largest recordkeeping platform², which provides insights into investor needs and behaviors, and actionable research that few competitors can match. We believe that the combination of asset management expertise and insight into participant behavior sets our target date strategies apart.

Performance data shown represents past performance and is no guarantee of future results. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate, so you may have a gain or loss when shares are sold. • Total returns are historical and include changes in share price and reinvestment of dividends and capital gains, if any. † Life of fund (LOF) returns are from the fund's inception to indicated month-end.

The investment risks of each Fidelity Freedom Index Fund change over time as its asset allocation changes. These risks are subject to the asset allocation decisions of the Investment Adviser. The funds are subject to the volatility of the financial markets, including that of equity and fixed income investments in the U.S. and abroad, and may be subject to risks associated with investing in high-yield, small-cap, commodity-linked, and foreign securities. The funds are subject to the risks associated with investing in a passively managed underlying fund in which the passively managed underlying fund's performance could be lower than an actively managed fund that shifts its portfolio assets to take advantage of market opportunities or lessen the impact of a market decline or a decline in the value of one or more issuers. Leverage can increase market exposure, magnify investment risks, and cause losses to be realized more quickly. No target date fund is considered a complete retirement program and there is no guarantee any single fund will provide sufficient retirement income at or through retirement. Principal invested is not guaranteed at any time, including at or after the funds' target dates.
